Secretary of Agriculture, Hon. JEREMIAH | was affectionately styled by those who knew best, was a highly educated man. It would be a less to say that he was not highly educated, simply be he never went through college. He is one of that list of self-educated men of which our country is so proud. No other land can boast of so honored all self-made men. Deprived of the educational sdvan which the more favored enjoy, such men make the mo their opportunities, and by their high-minded spirit o dependence, and indomitable perseverence, climb to highest rounds of the ladder of success and fame.

Ex-Secretary Rusk did not inherit his wide in edge of agriculture and practical farming. He act by studying nature and reading the proper books.

There is not a boy in Texas today having the ord allowance of intellect who may not make himself is the world as much as did Mr. Rusk.

Good books are the best friends that any boy have. Through them he may become the daily compa of the greatest minds that the world has ever known that their wide experience has taught them, they are II to tell to the boy who reads.

In the Encyclopedia Britannica the greatest sch of this generation have not only given their own thoughts, but have carefully gathered, classified and densed the best which the great men of all ages had offer to the world.

When Ex-Secretary Rusk was a boy it would cost him a small fortune to purchase the Encyclo Britannica, and had he been able to purchase it, he indeed have possessed the greatest reference library known to man, but it would have been meager comp with the great ninth edition revised and brought date, as it is in the new up to date edition offered to scribers by THE POST.

We say that every intelligent boy living in Term day has a better opportunity to become a great man had the Hon. JEREMIAH RUSK, for any boy can earn! ave Tou Cents a Day, and that will buy the very library in print.
